Table Lamp 12200-1

The Jugendstil Family

This unpretentious table lamp is a wonderful example of the use of the typical green shades with layered glass.

The base is made from massive brass for good stability and skilfully polished. The stem features a profiled design to add a bit of exquisite to the otherwise plain design.

With the shade reflecting the light downward this lamp makes an excellent desk lamp for classic offices or a reading table. With the stepped design of the base that can be used as a tray for pens and pencils, further facilitates this application.
